ABOUT ICCD

Currently in its 11th edition, the ICCD is an annual flagship conference to mark the International Childhood Cancer Awareness Day (15 February), organised virtually this year, regularly gathers a large multi-stakeholder audience with interest in childhood cancer and related issues on the health and research agenda.

All individually rare, paediatric cancers jointly represent the first cause of death by disease in children older than 1 year in Europe: more than 6,000 young patients die, and 35,000 cases are diagnosed annually. While substantial improvements have been achieved, there has been little progress in the cure rate of several paediatric malignancies, which are still driving mortality today.

The rarity of individual paediatric cancer types and their leading collective health burden across Europe make coordinated EU level approaches crucial. The ICCD event is thus dedicated to finding novel solutions to foster progress in childhood cancers through EU policy, programmes and collaboration with all stakeholders.
